Pardon Granted:	June 4, 2008

Theodore James Pinnock, Ph.D., was convicted of domestic assault and battery on September 22, 2001 by the Chesapeake Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court.

Dr. Pinnock was sentenced on October 11, 2001 to twelve months in jail, all of which was suspended, conditioned upon two years of good behavior to be monitored through Chesapeake Community Corrections Programs, to include an anger management program. He completed all requirements and was released on September 13, 2002. There have been no other charges either before or after the incident for which he was convicted.

Dr. Pinnock's conviction was based upon an altercation with his wife, which resulted in her receiving a small cut from a kitchen knife.

In 2006, Dr. Pinnock, who is now eighty-six years old, was discovered to be suffering from delusional episodes and diagnosed as having vascular dementia. A medical assessment concludes, "Mr. Pinnock's Vascular Dementia likely accounts for his actions directed towards his wife resulting in an assault charge in 2001. Even more likely, as a result of his dementia, Mr. Pinnock would not have been able to fully understand the criminal proceedings against him or assist his attorney in defending the charges against him."

Dr. Pinnock's caregiver is his wife of forty-nine years, who was the victim of the assault and who supports his pardon. His condition is satisfactorily controlled by medication.

Dr. Pinnock and his wife raised five children and they have ten grandchildren and one great-grandchild. He earned his doctorate from University of Wisconsin in agricultural economics and was a full professor at Tuskegee Institute, Alcorn State University and Virginia Tech, where he is a Professor Emeritus. In retirement, he enjoys his vegetable garden and bird watching.

Based upon the entirety of Dr. Pinnock's life and his medical condition that had not been diagnosed prior to the time of his conviction, it is evident based on information not then available to the court that he did not have the requisite intent for his actions to constitute a crime. Therefore, upon careful deliberation and review of all the information and the circumstances of the matter, I have decided it is just and appropriate to grant this ABSOLUTE PARDON that reflects Dr. Pinnock's innocence of domestic assault and battery for which he was convicted.

NOW, THEREFORE, I Timothy M. Kaine, Governor of the Commonwealth of Virginia, in accordance with the authority granted to me under Article V, Section 12 of the Constitution of Virginia, do hereby grant unto Theodore James Pinnock this Absolute Pardon from the conviction handed down by the Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court of the City of Chesapeake on September 22, 2001.

CONDITIONAL PARDON

Ollin Renaye Crawford-Daniels was convicted of 4 counts of robbery and 1 count of attempted robbery in the Circuit Court of Fairfax County in 1985. She was sentenced to 15 years for each robbery and 10 years for attempted robbery. The sentences were ordered to run consecutively, resulting in a total sentence of 70 years.

Upon incarceration, the Department of Corrections classified her crimes as “armed robberies” because she had shown tellers a bag and claimed to have a grenade. The classification of armed robberies also made her subject to Virginia’s “3-time loser” statute and made her parole-ineligible until 2020.

The trial judge who presided over all of Ms. Crawford-Daniels’ hearings and ordered her incarceration has submitted a letter regarding Ms. Crawford-Daniels saying; “I did not intend myself that she be ineligible for parole.” The Commonwealth’s attorney who prosecuted Ms. Crawford-Daniels submitted a letter stating, “I do not believe any of us thought she would be ineligible for parole on these convictions.”

Without questioning the Department of Corrections’ classification, I believe that Ms. Crawford-Daniels has served sufficient time to pay her debt to society. During that time, Ms. Crawford-Daniels has earned the trust and respect of the Warden of the correctional facility and the facility staff. I note also that a bipartisan group of nearly 50 members of the General Assembly have requested that I grant clemency to Ms. Crawford-Daniels.

NOW THEREFORE, I, Timothy M. Kaine, acting in accordance with the powers and authority granted to me as Governor of Virginia under Article V, Section 12 of the Constitution of Virginia, do hereby grant Olin Renaye Crawford-Daniels a conditional pardon. This pardon is conditioned upon Ms. Crawford-Daniels’ acceptance of the following terms and conditions:

I. Ms. Crawford-Daniels shall be under the custody and control of the Virginia Parole Board, subject to the following conditions:

1. She shall obey all Federal, State, and local laws and ordinances.
2. She shall report any arrest within three (3) business days to the Parole Officer.
3. She shall report in person or by telephone to the assigned Probation and Parole office within three (3) business days of her release from incarceration, and as otherwise instructed thereafter.
4. She shall permit the Parole Officer to visit her home and place of employment.
5. She shall follow the Parole Officer’s instructions and be truthful, cooperative, and report as instructed.

6. She shall not unlawfully use, possess or distribute controlled substances or related paraphernalia.

7. She shall not use, own, possess, transport or carry a firearm.

8. She shall report any change in residence within three (3) business days to the Parole Officer.

9. She shall not travel outside of an area designated by the Parole Officer, if so designated, without permission of the Parole Officer.

II. The Parole Board may revoke Ms. Crawford-Daniels' pardon, based on a violation of one or more of the conditions in Section I, or based on a finding by the Board that she is otherwise unfit or unsuitable to remain on supervision. Ms. Crawford-Daniels shall be subject to arrest upon cause shown by the Parole Board or the Parole Officer. The maximum date of release from supervision is March 14, 2011. However, Ms. Crawford-Daniels may be considered for unsupervised probation after one (1) year from the date of release, but must continue on good behavior until March 14, 2011.

REPRIEVE

BELL, EDWARD NATHANIEL

Crime: Capital Murder
Court: City of Winchester Circuit Court
Sentence Date: May 3, 2001
Sentence: Death
Pardon Granted: April 3, 2008

1. Edward Nathaniel Bell was convicted of the murder of Winchester police Sergeant Ricky L. Timbrook on October 29, 1999. For his crime, Mr. Bell was sentenced to death.

2. Given the nature of this crime, I have no reason to question the prosecutor's decision to seek the death penalty or the jury's decision that death was an appropriate sentence.

3. State and federal courts have consistently upheld Bell's convictions. Bell's counsel has filed, and is awaiting a ruling upon, a writ of certiorari with the United States Supreme Court seeking review of his conviction and sentence, as well as a motion to stay Bell's execution.

4. By counsel, Bell has petitioned me for clemency, seeking relief from his death sentence. I have not taken any action on that petition and will not do so at this time.

5. Bell is scheduled to be executed at 9:00 p.m. on April 8, 2008.

6. On September 25, 2007, the United States Supreme Court granted certiorari in the case of Baze v. Rees in order to consider the constitutionality of using lethal injection as a method of execution. That is the method of execution by which the Commonwealth would carry out Bell's death sentence.

7. There has been no execution carried out in the United States since that date, as courts around the country await the Supreme Court's ruling, which will likely be issued at some time before the middle of July. Approximately 30 execution dates in 13 states have been stayed in the interim, either by actions of the Supreme Court, lower federal courts, state courts or gubernatorial action. In one of these cases, the Supreme Court issued a stay of the October 17, 2007, scheduled execution of Christopher Scott Emmett in Virginia.

8. In order to await the Supreme Court's ruling in Baze, and respecting the National legal consensus that no executions go forward until that time, I am hereby granting a temporary reprieve of the execution date for Bell. This temporary reprieve will allow for issuance of the Supreme Court decision and consideration of whether its outcome has any effect upon the merits of Bell's legal claims or request for clemency.

9. Accordingly, I am hereby granting a delay of Bell's execution date until July 24, 2008, for the purpose of allowing the U.S. Supreme Court to issue its decision in the Baze case. In light of that ruling, on terms and conditions prescribed by this office, I will complete my assessment of Bell's petition for clemency following the issuance of the Court's decision in Baze.

NOW, THEREFORE, in light of the foregoing and in accordance with the powers granted to me as Governor of Virginia under Article V, Section 12 of the Constitution of Virginia and Va. Code Sections 53.1-229 and 53.1-232©, I, Timothy M. Kaine, do hereby grant a reprieve of the execution of Edward Nathaniel Bell to July 24, 2008.

COMMUTATION OF SENTENCE

In accordance with the powers granted to me as Governor of Virginia under Article V, Section 12 of the Constitution of Virginia, I, Timothy M. Kaine, do hereby grant to Percy Levar Walton, a commutation of the three death sentences imposed by the Circuit Court of the City of Danville to life imprisonment without the possibility of parole. This commutation is based on the following conclusions:

Percy Levar Walton was brought to trial in the Circuit Court for the City of Danville for capital murder, robbery, burglary, and using a firearm in the commission of a felony. Following Walton's guilty plea, the trial judge convicted Walton of these crimes. The judge later heard evidence on the issue of punishment. On October 31, 1997, after hearing the argument of counsel, the trial judge imposed life sentences for each of three robbery convictions, ten years for the burglary and three years for each of six firearms convictions. After concluding that each of Walton's capital murders demonstrated both future dangerousness and vileness, the trial court imposed three death sentences.

Since the date of the verdicts and sentencing by the court, Walton has made numerous unsuccessful appeals to courts of the Commonwealth and of the United States. It is noteworthy, however, that the decision by the United States Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit to uphold Walton's sentence was by a slim 7-6 majority.

There is no doubt that Walton killed three innocent people over a two-week period in November 1996. The victims met a fate they did not deserve and the families of the victims have suffered greatly from the loss of their loved ones. I have no reason to question the prosecutor's decision to seek the death penalty or the judge's decision that death was an appropriate sentence.

The courts have emphasized, however, that it is unconstitutional to execute a person who is mentally incompetent. The late U.S. Supreme Court Justice Lewis F. Powell, Jr. wrote in the seminal case of Ford v. Wainwright, 477 U.S. 399 (1986), that the Eighth Amendment of the U.S. Constitution "forbids the execution of those who are unaware of the punishment they are about to suffer and why they are to suffer it." He further concluded that the execution of a mentally incompetent inmate would be a "uniquely cruel penalty" where the inmate could not comprehend that they are about to die and could not "prepare, mentally and spiritually" for the execution.

Thus, the question of Walton's mental status is of the utmost importance in assessing whether the Commonwealth may carry out his death sentence. For this reason, the court system has wrestled with the question of whether Walton's mental capacity imposes a bar to his execution. Notwithstanding consistent decisions upholding his conviction, the courts found it necessary to carefully examine whether Walton's death sentence could be carried out consistent with the U.S. Constitution.

In this regard, a few days before Walton's initial scheduled execution date of May 28, 2003, the U.S. District Court for the Western District of Virginia granted Walton a stay of execution in order to determine Walton's mental competence. In July 2003, following extensive submission of evidence about Walton's mental state from 1997 through 2003, the court ruled that he was competent to be executed. A three-judge panel of appellate judges of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit vacated the lower court ruling, directing a broader inquiry into Walton's mental state. Before that inquiry took place, the entire court reconsidered the panel's decision in an en banc review. The en banc court found Walton competent to be executed by a narrow 7-6 majority.

In issuing its ruling, the Fourth Circuit properly limited its consideration to psychiatric evaluations and other evidence pertaining to Walton's mental state during the period from 1997 to 2003. By the time I first reviewed this matter, shortly before Walton's scheduled execution in June 2006, three years had passed since the evidence on his mental competence was presented to the court.

I noted at that time that Walton's clemency petition presented significant evidence that Walton had schizophrenia, that such a mental illness can cause serious deterioration of mental competence, and that Walton's mental state had deteriorated since 2003 such that there was more than a minimal chance that Walton no longer knew why he was to be executed or was even aware of the final punishment he was about to receive. Due to the history of judicial concern about his mental status, I determined that it was important to have current and independent information about Walton's mental condition in order to comply with the law forbidding execution of a mentally incompetent person. Accordingly, I delayed Walton's June 2006 execution date until December 8, 2006, for the purpose of conducting an independent evaluation of his mental condition and competence.

During that six-month period, I was provided with current and independent information pertaining to Walton's mental state from a number of sources including a thorough review of records maintained by the Department of Corrections, updated evaluations by psychiatrists, and information provided by persons who had interacted with Walton on a regular basis over a period of years.

After reviewing the information, I was compelled to conclude that Walton was seriously mentally impaired and that he met the Supreme Court's definition of mental incompetence. Because one could not reasonably conclude that Walton was fully aware of the punishment he was about to suffer and why he was to suffer it, I decided that his execution could not proceed at that time.

At the same time, it was within the realm of possibility – though unlikely – that Walton's mental impairment was not permanent. As a result, I concluded that a commutation of his sentence was not then appropriate. Rather, continued observation of Walton's condition over a more extended period of time was the appropriate course of action. Accordingly, I delayed his execution date by an additional 18 months, to June 10, 2008.

Over the course of those 18 months, there has been no discernible improvement in Walton's condition and no evidence that his mental impairment is temporary. Walton differs in fundamental ways from other death row offenders. He lives in a self-imposed state of isolation that includes virtually no interest in receiving or understanding information. Walton communicates only infrequently, almost invariably in response to direct questions, and those responses are minimal in nature. He has nothing in his cell other than a mattress, a pillow and a blanket. He shows no interest in contact with the outside world and has no television, radio, magazines, books or stationery. He has no personal effects of any kind. This minimal existence has been in evidence for the past five years.

In light of this information, I am again compelled to find that one cannot reasonably conclude that Walton is fully aware of the punishment he is about to suffer and why he is to suffer it. Given the extended period of time over which Walton has exhibited this lack of mental competence, I must conclude that a commutation of his sentence to life in prison without possibility of parole is now the only constitutionally appropriate course of action.

Although Walton's mental incompetence alone precludes carrying out an execution that would violate the Constitution, there are other factors that I have considered in granting limited clemency. Since Walton's conviction and sentencing, separate Supreme Court decisions have placed limitations on executions that very nearly fit Walton's circumstances.

The Court has ruled that the Constitution forbids executing an individual who: commits a capital crime under the age of 18 years old; was insane at the time of the capital crime; or is mentally retarded due to intellectual disabilities evidenced before the age of 18.

In this instance, Walton committed these murders less than two months past his 18th birthday. While he was not insane at the time of his crimes, there are strong indications that his mental illness started prior to the murders. While he scored a 66 on his most recent IQ test, which is below a standard for mental retardation (70 on an IQ test) set by the Supreme Court of Virginia, he appears to have fallen below that standard for mental retardation only after he turned 18 while the relevant legal standard in the Commonwealth requires that retardation be in evidence prior to that age.

While no one of these additional factors would justify clemency for Walton standing alone, it is appropriate to employ the sound legal practice of considering and weighing the totality of the facts in determining whether to grant limited clemency to Walton.

In reaching the conclusion to commute Walton's sentence to life in prison without possibility of parole, I recognize and respect the inherent obligation of each branch of government has to afford each to the others the dignity accorded by our separation of powers. Nonetheless, Article V, Section 12 of the Constitution of Virginia confers the extraordinary power of clemency on the Governor when the ends of justice call for the discharge of such duty, particularly where the exercise of that extraordinary power is, in my view, mandated by the Constitution of the United States of America.

In reaching my decision, I also remain mindful of the terrible injustice that Walton perpetrated against Jessie E. Kendrick, Elizabeth W. Kendrick, and Archie D. Moore, Jr.

NOW, THEREFORE, I do hereby grant to Percy Levar Walton a commutation of his three sentences of death for capital murder imposed by the Circuit Court of the City of Danville to life imprisonment without the possibility of parole.
