Introduction

The Compensation Board is pleased to present this report summarizing the review of circuit court clerks' salaries in relation to district court clerks and deputy clerks staff salaries, pursuant to Chapter 2 of the 2018 Virginia Acts of Assembly. This report includes findings of the comparison of the classification and pay plans, salary increase history, and average state supported salaries and locality supplements of circuit court clerks and employees of the district court system. As directed by the General Assembly, specific emphasis has been given to jurisdictions where locally funded supplements to salaries by a local governing body are not provided for these positions.

The Compensation Board would like to thank the Office of the Executive Secretary of the Supreme Court of Virginia for their participation and the technical assistance provided by staff. Questions or comments regarding this report should be directed to Robyn M. de Socio, Executive Secretary for the Compensation Board, at (804) 225-3439 or via email at robyn.desocio@scb.virginia.gov, or to Charlotte W. Lee, Budget Manager for the Compensation Board, at (804) 225-3366 or via email at charlotte.lee@scb.virginia.gov.

Background of Circuit and District Court Compensation

There are 120 elected circuit court clerks in Virginia. The Compensation Board compensates localities for salaries and benefits of 117 elected circuit court clerks and 1,083 deputy circuit court clerks and administrative positions. The Compensation Board spent $46.38 million in FY18 on compensation for salaries and benefits of state-supported circuit court clerks and their employees.

The salary of the elected circuit court clerk is prescribed in the Appropriation Act (2018 General Assembly, Special Session I, Chapter 2, Item 71, A.1) and is based on the population of the locality served. There are 8 population brackets with a current salary range of $78,553 to $145,897. All circuit court clerks' salaries may be supplemented locally.

The salaries of staff positions in circuit court clerks' offices are set based on the Compensation Board's approved pay bands and pay practices, which are similar to the Commonwealth's Department of Human Resource Management salary structure, with each pay band comprised of classifications with a single minimum and maximum salary range. Circuit court clerk staff position classifications fall within 5 pay bands, with salaries that range from an administrative pay band with an entry level salary of $21,278 to a supervisory/management pay band with a maximum salary of $124,677 (the highest state paid salary within this range is $112,608); Compensation Board salary structure does not include a salary differential for Northern Virginia localities. All circuit court clerks' staff salaries may be supplemented locally, however, no staff positon's salary can exceed 90% of the salary of the circuit court clerk.

Circuit court clerks are delegated the authority to use Compensation Board authorized budgeted funds to affect the salaries of their employees within the compensation and pay plan and pay practices established by the Compensation Board, modeled after the pay plans and practices used for state employees in Executive Branch agencies. Although the information on local supplements is self-reported, most circuit courts report that they receive supplements to some or all of their Compensation Board funded positions. However, there are currently 17 offices that report no local supplementing of any Compensation Board funded circuit court clerk's office positions.

The Office of the Executive Secretary provides centralized personnel support for 76 general district courts, 72 juvenile and domestic relations courts, and 44 combined courts (general district and juvenile and domestic relations courts combined in one court). Employees in the district court system participate in an independent judicial personnel system and are classified as one of three general classifications: clerk of court, supervising deputy clerk, or deputy clerk. Within each of these classifications, there are multiple pay grades with entry-step salaries.

The current statewide range of entry-step salaries for a clerk of court is between $36,915 and $60,325, depending on pay grade, with the maximum state paid salary in this classification of $120,121. The statewide range of entry-step salaries for a supervising deputy clerk is between $34,536 and $48,683, depending on pay grade, with the maximum state paid salary in this classification of $81,267. The statewide range of entry-step salaries for a deputy clerk is between $29,839 and $32,575, depending on pay grade, with the maximum state paid salary in this classification of $60,379.

The district court salary and classification plan includes a salary differential of approximately 22% for five Northern Virginia districts, applied to courts in seven localities (Alexandria, Arlington, Fairfax County, Fairfax City, Falls Church, Loudoun and Prince William). The current Northern Virginia salary range for a clerk of court is between $44,945 and $73,407 (maximum paid $97,029), supervising deputy clerk between $41,996 and $59,246 (maximum paid $89,081), and deputy clerk between $36,292 and $39,640 (maximum paid $69,697).

It is important to note that while the lowest grade for a newly hired deputy clerk is grade 7, with an entry-step salary of $29,839, or $36,292 in Northern Virginia, there currently remain 13 positions statewide at a lower, grade 6, classification level with an entry-step salary of $28,427, or $34,571 in Northern Virginia. This classification level will soon be eliminated through attrition and/or targeted salary actions.

There are currently only 8 of 76 general district courts, 7 of 72 juvenile and domestic relations courts, and 4 of 44 combined courts that have state-funded salaries supplemented locally either by a fixed dollar amount or a fixed percentage above the state-funded salary.

Comparison of Circuit and District Court Compensation

There are several notable differences between the Compensation Board's classification and pay plan and the district court systems' salary and classification plan that make their comparison challenging.

The Compensation Board's classification and pay band structure was established to group positions with similar levels of responsibility and compensation, but each pay band includes a variety of classifications based on the varied responsibilities of their offices. For example, the administrative pay band includes the classifications of microfilm technician, general office clerk, and clerk typist. The senior administrative pay band includes the classification of entry level deputy clerk, as well as cashier, bookkeeper, and senior clerk typist. Many employees of circuit court clerks are also classified separately based on their office's or locality's pay plan where some staff salaries are also supplemented locally.

Compensation Board funded circuit court clerk budgeted funds were subject to previous budget reductions, which reduced or eliminated non-personal services funds, and resulted in the reduction of salaries in some offices where non-personal services funding was insufficient to meet across-the-board budget reduction requirements. As a result, the Compensation Board funded salary and classification of some positions may not accurately reflect their hierarchy and level of responsibility within their office. For example, a Compensation Board administrative pay band, general office clerk position may be classified as a deputy clerk on their local pay plan and receive a local salary supplement based on their locality's pay plan or to make up for a reduction in state salary funding. In some cases, the Compensation Board classification of positions was forced downward to keep them on the pay scale when the office had to reduce staff salaries.

Additionally, there are currently 22 unfunded staff positions and another 114 positions with salaries that are below the entry level salary of their classification's pay band. The reduced salaries (but not the unfunded positions) are reflected in the Compensation Board's average salary used in this comparison. Some localities provide salary supplements to offset all or part of the salaries affected by budget reductions. Again, this is reflected in the average local salary of a Compensation Board funded position used in comparison with the average salary of an employee of the District Court System.

The pay grades within the District Court Salary and Classification Plan overlap the pay bands in the Compensation Board's state-funded Classification and Pay Plan. Although there is no administrative (clerical) classification in the District Court System, the salary grades and responsibilities of a deputy clerk in the District Court System fall within the salary range of the senior administrative and professional pay bands of the Circuit Court staff pay plan (for low-to mid-level deputy clerks). The salary grades and responsibilities of a supervising deputy clerk in the District Court System fall within the senior professional and supervisory/management pay bands of the Circuit Court staff pay plan (for mid- to upper-level deputy clerks) and the salary grades of a clerk in the District Court System fall within the salary range of the supervisory/management pay bands of the Circuit Court staff pay plan (for upper-level/chief deputies), and into the pay ranges established for elected Circuit Court Clerks by the General Assembly and specified in the Appropriation Act.

While the pay bands in the Compensation Board's Classification and Pay Plan are quite broad and extend far upward, as they were modeled after the pay band structure implemented for Executive Branch agency state employees to encompass multiple classification levels and replace multiple grade levels, almost all circuit court clerk employees' state-funded salaries fall below the mid-points of their pay bands. Of 1,083 budgeted circuit court clerk employees, only 8 positions (0.70%) have Compensation Board funded salaries above the mid-points of their pay bands, while most have Compensation Board funded salaries that are clustered close to the entry-level of the pay band, such that the average salary within each pay band is significantly less than the mid-point.

Findings and Fiscal Impact of Addressing Disparities

There is no classification in the district court salary and classification system comparable to the elected circuit court clerk.

For salary comparison, clerks within the district court system more closely resemble the supervisory/management pay band within the Compensation Board's classification and pay plan based on their average salary. Similar to other employees in the district court system, these positions are advertised through the Human Resources department of the Supreme Court's Office of the Executive Secretary and they are appointed and serve at the pleasure of the chief judge. As elected constitutional officers, the salaries of circuit court clerks are statutorily established by the General Assembly and prescribed in the appropriation act.

While the responsibilities of a court clerk in the district court system are more narrowly defined, circuit court clerks are elected constitutional officers and provide a wide-ranging array of other services that include: land records management, probate and fiduciary duties, issuing of marriage licenses, concealed weapons permits and processing of notary public commissions, custodian and official record keeper of election ballots, and maintaining a public law library. Elected circuit court clerks are responsible for making all personnel decisions for staffing in their offices, within their Compensation Board authorized budget and within the parameters established in Compensation Board approved pay practices, and their employees serve at their will.

The district court salary and classification plan has phased out the pay grades most comparable to the Compensation Board's administrative pay band.

Prior to FY16, the district court pay plan included three pay grades below the current, entry level, grade 7 deputy clerk classification, with an entry level salary that was within 3% of the entry level salary of the Compensation Board's administrative pay band. However, two of these pay grades (grades 4 and 5) were eliminated. In addition, Grade 6, which is made up of only 13 positions statewide, will soon be eliminated. Newly hired deputies are provided a salary amount no less than the entry step of a Grade 7, which is currently $29,839 (or $36,292 in Northern Virginia). The elimination of these lower classifications was based on increased duties and responsibilities, as well as phasing out of employees in these lowest pay grades over time through attrition, changing job descriptions and targeted salary increases.

The current entry level salary of a Compensation Board funded administrative (clerical) position, which is classified as an administrative role or pay band 1, is $21,278. However, due to unrestored budget reductions, the average Compensation Board funded salary of an administrative position just barely hovers above the entry level salary, at $21,782. There are currently 59 Compensation Board funded circuit court employees in the administrative pay band of the Compensation Board's Classification and Pay Plan. The entry level salary of the senior administrative pay band (containing entry level deputy clerks) is $25,422, which is $4,144 or 19.48% more than the entry-level salary of an administrative position. The cost to eliminate the administrative pay band and bring these salaries up to the current salary level of the senior administrative pay band (entry-level deputy clerk) would be $241,960.

The Compensation Board's entry level salary for a deputy circuit court clerk is significantly lower than the state-funded entry level deputy clerk salary in the District Court System.

The current entry level salary of a Compensation Board funded deputy clerk, which is classified as a senior administrative role or pay band 2, is $25,422 as compared to the entry level salary of $29,839 of a deputy clerk, pay grade 7, in the District Court System, a difference of $4,417 or 17.37%.

Prior to the increases to district court staff salaries implemented in September 2017, that distributed $3.5 million ($2.8 million in salary dollars) primarily to positions that were below the newly established grade minimums and increased the entry-level salary of a district court deputy clerk by 7%, the salary of an entry-level deputy clerk in the district court plan had not been more than 4.5% above the Compensation Board funded entry-level salary of a deputy clerk of the circuit court.

There are currently 365 Compensation Board funded circuit court employees in the senior administrative pay band (deputy circuit court clerks) of the Compensation Board's Classification and Pay Plan. Their average Compensation Board funded salary is currently $26,095, a difference of $3,744 or 14.35% below the entry-level salary of $29,839 for a state-funded District Court System deputy clerk, with 338 positions (93%) having individual Compensation Board funded salaries below this entry-level.

When local salary supplements are considered, the average total salary of a Compensation Board funded position in the senior administrative pay band is $35,158, which more closely aligns with the salaries of deputy clerks in the district courts. However, a total of 149 (41%) of the 365 employees in this pay band either do not receive a local supplement, or receive a local supplement but still have salaries below $29,839, the entry-level salary of a deputy district court clerk. Local salary supplements for deputy circuit court clerks in Northern Virginia, where the Compensation Board is not funded to provide for a salary differential, tend to be higher, and drive up the average statewide total salary.

The cost to increase the Compensation Board salaries of 338 deputy circuit court clerk positions having state salaries below the entry-level salary of $29,839 for a deputy clerk in the District Court System, plus 5 deputy circuit court clerk positions in higher pay bands that also have state salaries below $29,839, to get to that minimum, would be $1,543,347.

Often recommendations to increase the base salaries of Compensation Board funded employees in any constitutional office have been met with reservations due to a variety of reasons, including the impact of local salary supplements on base salary levels funded by the Compensation Board. However, it is important to note that there is no requirement that localities continue to fund local supplements for any given position at any time. While it is the Commonwealth's obligation to fund the salaries of state-supported positions in circuit court clerks' offices, most localities have provided local supplements to the salaries of Compensation Board funded deputy circuit court clerk positions in response to a series of budget reductions over the past decade that have required elected Clerks to cut the state-funded salaries of their staff in order to meet mandated state general fund reductions, and then to further compensate for several years when no state-funded salary increases were provided to state-supported local employees. Localities are known to reduce supplements when the local fiscal climate dictates, and there is no guarantee that a supplement provided to one deputy clerk will be continued if that individual leaves and a new deputy is hired, nor is there any guarantee that a new deputy clerk position allocated to an office due to workload increases would receive a supplement just because one or more deputies in that office already receive a supplement. It is also important to note that when the Commonwealth is able to fund salary increases to these constitutional officer employees, localities often absorb these increases to offset funds they have provided up front to allow salaries to be increased at the same time as increases for locality employees, with knowledge that the state-funded increase is forthcoming, or to offset local supplements that were provided to make up for a cut to state funding. Overall compensation for the employee may not actually increase, but state funding moves closer to levels that are appropriate to support these offices.

If choosing to consider local supplements as a component of total salaries, the cost to provide a Compensation Board funded increase in the total salary, to achieve the entry-level of $29,839 when including the existing local supplement, would be $532,622 for the 149 deputy circuit court clerk positions in the senior administrative pay band and 5 deputy circuit court clerk positions in higher pay bands with total salaries below this level. While this may be considered a lower-cost alternative to the Commonwealth, as noted above, there is no guarantee that the local supplement would be maintained, and would likely result in individual deputy clerks' total salaries falling below the "new" entry-level as individual supplements are reduced or eliminated, maintaining ongoing parity problems. Also, if parity is to be achieved, new Compensation Board funded deputy circuit court clerk positions should be established at a state-funded entry-level salary that matches the salary provided for a deputy clerk in the district courts, but parity problems could continue if an existing position in the same office were to lose a local supplement. Ultimately, what is most appropriate is that the Commonwealth provides a comparable state-funded salary structure for both court systems, leaving local supplements to provide aid in areas where cost-of-living dictates (such as Northern Virginia, where the district court system provides a salary differential but the circuit court system through the Compensation Board does not, or in other areas of the state where localities provide supplements in both court systems to maintain competitive salary offerings), and defraying some of the state costs that have been pushed to localities in recent years in many forms beyond just compensating for lower salaries.

Alternative Considerations for Positions in the Administrative pay band

In the Compensation Board pay plan, there is currently a difference of 19.48% between the entry-level salary of the administrative (clerical) pay band, at $21,278, and the entry-level salary of the senior administrative (entry-level deputy clerk) pay band, at $25,422. In the District Court System, comparable positions were upgraded to the deputy salary level with lower classification levels eliminated, and proposed costs to do likewise for these positions in circuit court clerks' offices were cited earlier in this report. In the absence of the promotion of these positions to a deputy clerk level (from the administrative pay band to the senior administrative pay band), it would still be necessary to provide a comparable increase along with any salary parity action to address state-funded salaries of deputies in circuit court clerks. An increase to the Compensation Board funded entry-level salary of the administrative pay band by the same 17.37% difference as currently exists between circuit court and district court entry-level deputy salaries would result in an increase to the entry-level salary of the administrative pay band from $21,278 to $24,975, and would result in a cost of $215,943 to bring 53 of the 59 positions in the pay band up to the higher entry-level salary.

The average state-supported salaries of circuit court clerk employees overall is 15.0% less than the average state-supported salaries of employees in the district court salary and pay plan, when Northern Virginia courts receiving the salary differential are excluded. However, this variance is lower than for entry-level deputies, as local salary supplements even out salaries in the higher classification levels.

When examining all salaries of circuit court clerk employees at all levels in comparison with all salaries of district court employees, excluding Northern Virginia (where district court employee salaries include a differential, and circuit court clerk employee salaries tend to be supplemented locally at higher levels), there are still overall differences between the two courts in average state-funded salaries. While the greatest differences exist with entry-level deputies, higher level deputy salaries and supervisory level deputy salaries also vary between the two systems at the state-funded level. The average state supported salary of a district court employee is $37,566 as compared with the average salary of $32,654 in a Compensation Board supported circuit court clerk staff position, a difference of $4,912 or 15.0%. However, when local supplements are included, the average total salary of a district court employee is $38,038 as compared with the average total salary of $38,127 in a circuit court clerk staff position, a difference of ($89) or (0.23%).

The average state-supported salary of a circuit court clerk employee in a locality that does not provide salary supplements is $32,232, or 16.52% below the average statewide salary of an employee in the district court salary and pay plan, when Northern Virginia courts receiving a salary differential are excluded.

There are currently 17 circuit court clerks' offices with a total of 81 staff positions that report that their locality provides no local salary supplements to their Compensation Board funded employee positions. While this represents only 14% of offices, it represents over 22% of administrative and deputy positions. The average statewide salary of a Compensation Board supported circuit court clerk staff position in a locality that does not provide salary supplements to staff is $32,232, a difference of $5,324 or 16.52% less than the average statewide salary of a district court employee of $37,566 (excluding salaries of district court employees in Northern Virginia). The average statewide salary of a Compensation Board funded circuit court clerk staff position in these non-supplementing localities is $4,354 less, or 13.51% less, than the average salary of a district court employee of $36,586 in these same districts.

While many localities do supplement the Compensation Board funded salaries of deputies and other employees in circuit court clerks' offices, they supplement these offices significantly less than other employees in other constitutional offices. Of the 103 localities that supplement at least one salary in a circuit court clerk's office, the overall supplement amounts range from 1% to 282% (an outlier) above the state funded amount, with 4 localities supplementing 100% or more and 57 offices supplementing 10% or less. Overall, the average of all supplements is 21% and the median is 11%. As the Compensation Board does not fund a salary differential for offices or employees in Northern Virginia, these localities tend to supplement by a greater degree, with an average supplement amount of 70% above the Compensation Board salary amount; however one Northern Virginia locality, the City of Alexandria, supplements only 11%.

Finally, while one of the barriers to increasing state-funded base salary levels for employees in constitutional offices is often that localities are already funding supplemental amounts to increase employees' overall salaries, these supplements vary and change over time, and are in no way required. Seventeen localities choose not to supplement their clerks' offices at all, and any locality could choose to reduce or discontinue supplementing at any time. In the areas where little to no supplements are provided, employees in these offices do receive significantly lower salaries on average than their counterparts in the District Court System, and a base increase to state-funded salary levels for employees in circuit court clerks' offices would be appropriate in order to achieve parity.

The September 2017 investment of $3.5 million (including salary and benefit costs) to increase the salaries of clerks and deputies in the District Court System provided a much-needed boost to low salary levels in these offices. A similar investment for deputy clerks and employees in Circuit Court Clerks' offices could provide for up to a 10% increase in base state-funded salaries of Compensation Board funded positions, would relieve localities from the need to provide local supplements to make up for significant cuts in state funding, and would more closely align the state-funded salaries of positions within the court system overall, most notably in offices where local salary supplements are not provided and in the lower pay bands where the greatest variation exists.

The annualized cost to provide each 1% of salary increase (including salary and benefit costs) to the 1,083 Compensation Board funded administrative and deputy positions in circuit court clerks' offices is $344,475. Varied options focused on the lower pay bands can also be considered, with the annualized cost to provide each 1% of salary increase to the base salary levels of positions according to their pay band classification level as follows:

Note that all costs cited in this report for providing specified increases exclude positions that are currently unfunded by the Compensation Board due to previous budget reductions. Also excluded from the cost are the salaries of positions in the Cities of Newport News, Richmond and Roanoke that are budgeted by the Compensation Board, but expenses are not reimbursed, as these Circuit Court Clerks collect and maintain all fees locally to pay expenses budgeted by the Compensation Board. Positions budgeted but not funded in these cities would also be included in any approved salary changes, so they are included in the count of positions affected in all scenarios.

Appendix A – Authority for the Study

Chapter 2, Item 71, paragraph N. (2018 Virginia Acts of Assembly)

"N. The Compensation Board, in consultation with the Executive Secretary of the Supreme Court shall conduct a study of circuit court clerk salaries in relation to district court clerks and deputy clerks staff salaries in all jurisdictions, with specific emphasis in jurisdiction where locally funded supplements to salaries by a local governing body are not provided for these positions. The study shall include a detail report on the salary disparities by each jurisdiction, the total fiscal impact of addressing such disparities, and recommendations for state adjustment, if any. Copies of the study shall be provided by October 1, 2018, to the Secretary of Administration, the Secretary of Finance, Director, Department of Planning and Budget, and the Chairmen of the House Appropriations and Senate Finance Committees."
