Dear Chairmen:

Virginia Code § 16.1-69.10 provides that the Committee on District Courts shall make a study and report to the General Assembly on the number of district court judges needed and the districts for which they shall be authorized.

As you are aware, Item 40, Paragraph K, of the 2016 Appropriation Act, provided funding "for the Supreme Court of Virginia to contract with the National Center for State Courts [NCSC] to reevaluate the November 2013 results of the weighted caseload system study that measured and compared judicial caseloads throughout the Commonwealth" on the circuit, general district, and juvenile and domestic relations district court levels. In response, the Supreme Court of Virginia's Office of the Executive Secretary contracted with the NCSC. In addition to the Report to the General Assembly Committee on District Courts December 14, 2017 Page Two factors considered during the previous study, the NCSC also considered factors identified by the Supreme Court such as the use of interpreters, law clerks, the effect of pro se litigants on judicial time, and the effect of population growth or decline. In light of the detailed study conducted by the NCSC, the Committee on District Courts did not conduct a study regarding the need for new district court judgeships this year. On December 13, the Executive Committee of the Committee on District Courts adopted the NCSC's report and recommendations.

Consistent with the 2017 Virginia Judicial Workload Assessment Report ("Report"), the Committee on District Courts recommends that the General Assembly authorize and fund the number of judges identified in the Report as needed in each of the districts. Specifically, the Report recommends increasing by one the number of authorized general district court judgeships in the Fifth, Sixth, Twenty-first, Twenty-fifth, Twenty-eighth, and Thirty-second Districts, and by one the number of authorized juvenile and domestic relations district court judgeships in the Sixth, Thirteenth, Nineteenth, and Thirtieth Districts.

The Report also reveals that three juvenile and domestic relations district court judgeships currently authorized are not supported by caseloads in the districts for which they are authorized (one each in the Second, Tenth, and Fifteenth Judicial Districts). The Committee on District Courts recommends reducing by one the number of authorized judgeships in each of these districts as the number of funded and filled judgeships in these districts corresponds with the newly recommended number of authorized judgeships.

Please find enclosed Exhibits 16 and 17 from the NCSC report which outline the "Judge Need" for the district courts, lists of the current and announced general district and juvenile and domestic relations district court vacancies as of December 12, 2017, and a statement showing the costs for the creation of a new district court judgeship. In accordance with Item 40, Paragraph D of the 2017 Appropriation Act, the fiscal impact for the creation of each new district court judgeship will be $264,334.

If you have any questions, please do not hesitate to contact me.

With best wishes, I am

Very truly yours,

Dear Chairmen:

Virginia Code § 17.1-507 provides that the Judicial Council shall make a study and report to the Courts of Justice Committees of the House and Senate on the number of new circuit court judgeships needed and the circuits for which they should be authorized.

As you are aware, Item 40, Paragraph K, of the 2016 Appropriation Act, provided funding "for the Supreme Court of Virginia to contract with the National Center for State Courts [NCSC] to reevaluate the November 2013 results of the weighted caseload system study that measured and compared judicial caseloads throughout the Commonwealth" on the circuit, general district, and juvenile and domestic relations district court levels. In response, the Supreme Court of Virginia's Office of the Executive Secretary contracted with the NCSC. In addition to the factors considered during the previous study, the NCSC also considered factors identified by the Supreme Court such as the use of interpreters, law clerks, the effect of pro se litigants on judicial time, and the effect of population growth or decline. In light of the detailed study conducted by the NCSC, the Judicial Council of Virginia did not conduct a study regarding the need for new district court judgeships this year. On December 13, the Executive Committee of the Judicial Council of Virginia adopted the NCSC's report and recommendations.

Consistent with the 2017 Virginia Judicial Workload Assessment Report ("Report"), the Judicial Council recommends that the General Assembly authorize and fund the number of judges identified in the Report as needed in each of the circuits. Specifically, the Report recommends increasing by one the number of authorized circuit court judgeships in the Fifth, Seventeenth, Twenty-first, Twentyfourth, and Twenty-fifth Judicial Circuits. Report to the General Assembly Judicial Council of Virginia December 14, 2017 Page Two

The Report also reveals that six circuit court judgeships currently authorized are not supported by caseloads in the circuits for which they are authorized (one each in the Second, Seventh, Thirteenth, Eighteenth, Twenty-second and Twentyseventh Judicial Circuits). The Judicial Council of Virginia recommends reducing by one the number of authorized judgeships in five of these judicial circuits (Seventh, Thirteenth, Eighteenth, Twenty-second and Twenty-seventh) as the number of funded and filled judgeships corresponds with the newly recommended number of authorized judgeships, and reducing by one the number of judgeships in the Second Judicial Circuit upon the death, resignation or retirement of any judge of that court.

Please find enclosed Exhibits 16 and 17 from the NCSC report which outline the "Judge Need" for the circuit courts, lists of the current and announced circuit court vacancies as of December 12, 2017, and a statement showing the costs for the creation of a new circuit court judgeship. In accordance with Item 40, Paragraph D of the 2017 Appropriation Act, the fiscal impact for the creation of each new district court judgeship will be $ 288,822.
